Georg Foster Research Fellowship Award

Professor Wang, a distinguished academic at the University of Queensland and co-founder of the Queensland National Aquaculture Centre, is the recipient of the Georg Foster Research Fellowship. He is a Professor at the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation and has been a visiting professor at various institutions.

Dr. M. White is the Institute of Animal Production and Technology, University of Queensland. His research project involves the development of novel aquaculture methods and the cultivation of new species for human consumption.

In addition, Dr. White has been awarded the 2016 Wynn Research Fellowship Award for his work on the cultivation of new species in aquaculture. His research has contributed significantly to the field of aquaculture and has been widely recognized for its innovative and practical approach.

Further, Dr. White has also been recognized with the 2016 Research Award for his contributions to the field of animal production and technology. His work has been instrumental in advancing the field of aquaculture and has been acknowledged with numerous awards and recognitions.

Dr. White's dedication to the field of aquaculture has been widely acknowledged, and his research has been influential in shaping the future of the industry. His work continues to inspire and influence researchers and practitioners alike.